NATIONS OF WORLD ACCLAIM TREATY

APPROVAL OF SENATE SURE FOR COMPACT

Present Indications Are an Almost Unanimous Vote for Kellogg Pact
MAKES WAR DIFFICULT
Exchange of Notes to Justify Self-defense Plea Necessary for Nations

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1928 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Although there is always doubt on what the United States Senate will do about any treaty, the sentiment today is such that an almost unanimous vote in ratifying the anti-war pact being signed in Paris would not be at all surprising.
All the Democrats who voted for the covenant of the league of nations are logically in favor of the Kellogg treaty. All the Republicans who have supported the administration in season and out of season will vote as regulars for the treaty. This leaves the "irreconcilable" group of the old fight against the league and in that group Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, played a prominent part. He today is the leading exponent of the anti-war pacts in the senate; in fact it is openly said in senate circles that Mr. Borah's insistence that something be done about "outlawry of war" prodded the administration into taking seriously the suggestions that first emanated from M. Briand.

O. K. IS CERTAIN
So, ratification by the senate, if not by an overwhelming vote, may be said to be assured. Some of the men who fought the league covenant will be for the treaty if for no other reason than to show by contrast what can be done with a peace treaty that depends for its effectiveness on moral rather than physical force and on honor rather than explicit legal obligation.

There is, of course, the usual doubt expressed as to the value of the treaties. This was the case, too, when the famous Bryan treaties were ratified, it being argued that after a nine months cooling off period nations could not be expected to start a war but that there was little likelihood of it. The Bryan treaties are also still in effect. As between members of the league, the covenant and Locarno are still operative. Hence, the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy is perhaps more a re-statement of a principle than a formula for world peace. The methods of maintaining and preserving peace are left to the nations of the world to advise. The right of self-defense is granted just as is the law of self preservation.

The notes of interpretation which preceded the signing of the treaty amount in a sense to reservations but in diplomacy they are not quite as binding as reservations actually attached to a treaty itself. Yet if a nation felt justified in going to war it would revert to the exchanges of notes and contend that the right of self defense and the recovery of liberty were action when attacked were expressly granted and understood when the anti-war treaty was signed.

QUESTION OF ISSUES
Then it will become a question of whether the nations at war can persuade the rest of the world that the issues were not spurious and that the unfriendly act which led to hostilities was indeed an attack on a nation which could be construed as an invasion.
Many of the acts that led to war are of themselves not likely to be regarded as in the nature of an "attack" warranting the exercise of self defense, especially when the attack occurs against a national in a foreign land, but nothing in the exchange of notes indicates how far isolated instances of this kind would permit a military demonstration or even war.
Acts of reprisal, such as the occupation of a port of the seizure of a vessel, are not considered war in a technical sense and there is every reason to believe that the Kellogg anti-war treaty, while hopeful of preventing any outbreak of hostilities, is not in any way intended to diminish rights of self-protection for citizens and property abroad, though this may become one of the moot points of discussion of some day when the provisions of the anti-war pact are in any such case challenged.

SMITH OPENS BATTLE IN NEW JERSEY

IS FORCED BY WILD CROWD TO MAKE ADDRESS

Impromptu Speech Fails to Discuss Issues but Is Unmistakeably Political

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer
New York—(P)—With a brief speech of thanks to the people of New Jersey who hailed him unopposedly during his four day visit there, Governor Smith has fired the first shot in his fight for the presidency since he was formally proclaimed the Democratic standard bearer.
While impromptu and not on the issues of the day, the address was delivered amid atmosphere so unmistakably political that it was generally accepted as having put the nominee up to the front line trenches for the battles to come. Plans for his speaking itinerary were down for discussion at conferences here Tuesday, and the governor will leave Wednesday morning for Syracuse to attend a dinner there Wednesday night and the state fair the next day.

Governor Smith's first speech, made shortly before midnight from a small decorated platform on the city hall steps in Newark, surrounded by a weltering, torch-bearing crowd that flooded into the streets, surprised nearly everyone in his party, as he had passed the word that he intended to make no open air speeches unless forced to do so.

"FORCED" TO SPEAK
This evidently was a case where he was forced, for the throngs that greeted him during the late afternoon and night as he made his way by automobile up to New York from Springfield, N. J., where he spent the weekend, gave him an opinion as tumultuous as that of last Friday, when he was the big Democratic rally at Sea Girt.

With difficulty the nominee eluded his way through the crowd to the steps then, with hat off and his hands on the railing in front of him, declared he had never seen a greater display of enthusiasm for a cause than that shown for him in his neighborhood.

"I left New York at 4 p. m., Friday," he began. "I've never thought New Jersey had so great a population. At Sea Girt, the whole population of the eastern part of the United States seemed to be assembled."

"I will be sorry to leave New Jersey. I have never seen so much devotion. I may say affection, as the people of New Jersey have shown me. I have been called 'Al' more often during the four days I spent here than in my whole official life in New York."

The Newark demonstration climaxed a series of smaller outbursts which greeted Governor Smith all the way up from Deal where he had stopped to play nine holes of golf with William E. Kenny and James J. Riordan.

New York, old friends and Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson.

As a result of the big send-off Gov. Smith Tuesday was more convinced than ever that New Jersey was safe for him in November.

Copenhagen—(P)—Possible proof that the Rockford-to-Stockholm fliers, Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, reached the east coast of Greenland was contained in a communique issued by the Danish government Tuesday saying that a noise like that of an airplane had been heard by the native colony at Akigasek. Invoke 1697 Blue Law To Prosecute Professor Boston—(P)—A warrant charging Dr. Horace M. Kallen, New York sociologist, with blasphemy at a recent Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting, was withdrawn by Judge Murray in municipal court Tuesday. The warrant was issued when Police took exception to an utterance of Dr. Kallen that "if Sacco and Vanzetti were anarchists, Jesus Christ was an anarchist."

Judge Murray took this action pending a further investigation of the matter, but it was thought the charge would be dropped entirely.
Dr. Kallen had informed Gardner Jackson, of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee, that he would come to Boston to accept service of the warrant and fight the case through to the end. He talked by long distance telephone from his farm at Bethel, Conn. Police were seeking Dr. Kallen, whom they charged with violation of a blasphemy statute 231 years old.

Mr. Ferris, in his letter, says that he has been reliably advised that "an amount in excess of $50,000 has already been dispensed with the constructive knowledge of the candidate, and that campaign disbursements in his interest will exceed $100,000 before Sept. 4."

William H. Hill, chairman of the New York State Hoover committee, had an engagement with the Republican advance guard to supplement the address given him Monday by Charles D. Hilles, national committee man for New York, and Daniel E. Pomeroy, vice chairman of the New York committee.

The lease was negotiated for the government by Albert F. Fall, then secretary of the interior.

OTHERS READY TO JOIN PACT AGAINST WAR

At Least Year Will Be Required for Ratification by Signatories

FEW ADVERSE COMMENTS
"Treaty Is Direct Blow Against Very Vitals of War," Says Briand

Paris—(P)—The effect of the signing of the Kellogg-Briand war renunciation treaty was apparent Tuesday. Nations in various parts of the world had announced their desire to become parties to the pact.

The original signatures were still wet when telegrams and cables of adherence by other countries began to pour into Paris. The governments of Denmark, Rumania, and Rumania and others among those having expressed this wish.

The compact now is open to adherence by all civilized nations. An official invitation to join in the pledge has been handed by the French ambassador to Maxim Litvinoff, Russian soviet commissar for foreign affairs, at Moscow.

It is expected that at least a year will elapse before the treaty has been finally ratified by the original signatory countries whose legislatures must pass on it.

Congratulations still were being received by M. Briand Tuesday night for having in general, including the not inconsiderable element of popular opinion, furnished by American and other tourists, celebrated the event with appropriate calm and decorum.

The boulevards and the sidewalk cafes were crowded until a late hour Monday night with people discussing the general character of the treaty. Several taxicab loads of this element demonstrated down the Champs Elysees but the police confiscated the cabs and locked up the occupants.

The prefect of police prevented any concerted demonstration by the simple process of detaining many of the most notorious extremist leaders.

KEILGOD TO IRELAND

Frank B. Keilgod, American secretary of state, retired early Monday night to get a good night's rest preparatory to attending a luncheon of the "League of Nations" tomorrow Tuesday and a reception at the Paris city hall. He plans to leave here Wednesday aboard the cruiser Detroit for Ireland.

In a speech at the treaty ceremony Arride Briand, French foreign minister, gave Mr. Keilgod "preponderant credit for consummation of the treaty." War henceforth, branded with degradation, is by mutual accord truly and regularly outlawed, so that a culprit would incur the unconditional condemnation and probably the annihilation of all of his co-signatories," the French foreign minister said referring to the pact. "It is a direct blow to the institution of war, even to its very value."

Commenting on the treaty, Lord Curzon, who sailed for Great Britain and Northern Ireland and separately in the name of King George V. for India, cautioned against its celebration. Keilgod's activities in celebrating the pact mean that the United States would depart from its policy of aloofness toward European complications.

He emphasized the moral value of the treaty. Just as Napoleon once said that the great factor in war is the moral factor, so it is in peace, he said.

PRASE FROM PERSHING

Washington—(P)—General Pershing in a statement Tuesday on the new anti-war treaty said:

"I regard this treaty as a landmark in the history of the world. It is a direct blow to the institution of war, even to its very value."

Important Announcement!

Starting Saturday, September 1

The Retail Stores of Appleton, which have been co-operating in trying out the plan of opening their places of business on Friday evenings, instead of Saturday evenings

Will Resume The Saturday Night Opening Schedule

that is closing at 5:30 p. m. every day except Saturday and remaining open until 9 p. m. on Saturday

THIS action was taken solely in the interests of harmony, and not the result of lack of success. It is the opinion of those who have participated in the new schedule that it was proven to be acceptable and popular with the great majority of customers. This fact is borne out by the results in sales recorded in the various institutions, by favorable comment heard on all sides from people in every walk of life and by the unanimous approval of the employees, whose interests were a large factor in encouraging the merchants to adopt the Friday night schedule.

A NUMBER of merchants however, were unwilling to unite in giving the plan a trial, and rather than continue to present a divided front to the public, it was thought best to suspend the further operation of the schedule until such time as a plan acceptable to all merchants can be adopted. It is the belief of those participating in this move, that all merchants, employees and customers will welcome some plan whereby the employees of retail establishments may be granted a working schedule that will enable them to enjoy some of the hours of leisure accorded other trades and lines of labor, especially as pertains to the late hours on Saturday evenings.

THEY pledge themselves to continue in their efforts to obtain this end by whatever means it can be reached harmoniously and unanimously and ask the co-operation of the public and the other merchants in bringing about improved conditions without working hardship upon the shopping public.

AMATEUR PLAYERS TO PRESENT "THE ENEMY"

Difficult Production of Channing Pollock Will Be Given Wednesday and Thursday

Neenah—Most amateur players to hit their theatrical wagons to a mule and trust to the horseplay to haul them to success as they pull the good lines. The Players' club of the Presbyterian church has hitched its wagon to Channing Pollocks "The Enemy," which may be a hard planet to be reached by amateur fingers, but which, all the same, should afford an interesting exercise in stretching, when it is presented Wednesday and Thursday at the church.

The second of the play is said to be a comedy, during, and after the war. It deals with an Austrian family, and the English friend who lived in its midst until a government's declaration of war made him the enemy.

Francis Proctor takes the leading role of the temperamental, sensitive Carl Behrend who has just finished a play on the futility, cruelty, inevitable end of wars, when he is called to fight one. The part of Paul Arndt, his splendidly impassioned wife, is taken by Florence Hayes.

Margaret Teal will be Barzuka, the maid, loud, clumsy, big hearted Bragg Gordon, the Englishman in the American household, will be interpreted by Albert Foster will take the part of Jan, the servant. The theme of the play will be found in the characterization of Dr. Arndt, a pacifist and a university professor, interpreted by Robert Verbeck who is also directing and managing the play.

Winckelman, a hysterical and excitable woman, wrung colorless by war. Howard Adenhold takes the part of her husband, Fritz, and Hugh Roberts that of her seven-year-old son, Kurt. Lucille Lieben will be Aunt Liesha. Mr. Verbeck has been working with the case for some time, but it is familiar to the director who coached the same drama at Ohio Wesleyan where he is a student.

"The Enemy" ran for two years in New York. The play is considered one of the masterpieces of modern literature.

PUT BOILER IN NEW THEATRE BUILDING

Neenah—The boiler of the new theatre building, which arrived last Tuesday, was lowered into the basement Tuesday with the aid of a steam shovel which picked it up and placed it at a point near which it will be located. That part of the theatre to run through to Water-st. was staked out Tuesday and the necessary excavating will be started at once. It is expected that the boiler will commence work on the walls of the main building Wednesday.

BOARD MUST SETTLE MANY HARD PROBLEMS

Men on Review Group Decide Complaints Made by Taxpayers on Assessments

Neenah—In a just-remodeled office of the city hall, tucked with the smell of fresh paint, caused by the scrape of workmen's ladders, sit four men. They sit on new, pride furniture, and their feet rest on a matter of fact new-tiled floor, but there is something about their bearing which changes the office to Solomon's court or the justice room of a caliph from a tale of Scherhezaide. It is the court of the board of review which decides if the wealthy man whose property has been worth much while he was trying to sell it, is justified in his claim that it is worth little when it is being assessed. It is the body which decides if the poorer man, or the protecting woman are right in their complaints, and finally it is the body which indirectly determines what the city tax rate will be.

If the city is assessed for much property, the tax rate will be smaller, but there will be more articles of personal and real property to be taxed. If the city is assessed at a lower valuation the tax rate will have to be higher on each item, that the necessary amount of money the city needs might be raised.

Although the board is composed of Mayor George E. Sande, H. S. Zemlock, L. M. Lambert, William Schmidt, Jr., and John Stulp, usually there are but four men, including the two assessors in the office at a time.

There is the double duty of pouring oil on the troubled souls of the potential tax payers, and enforcing the city's rights.

POLITICIANS SEEM TO FORGET LADIES AFTER ELECTIONS

Before Ballots Are Cast, However, They Feel Nothing Is Too Good for Weaker Sex

Washington—Up to election time the politicians feel that nothing is too good for the women. After that, it seems to be different. As long as there are votes to be counted, their sex, with its 25 or 30 million possible ballots, is the equal of the male in every respect.

This will be the third presidential election in which the ladies have been permitted to function. Meanwhile they have been put on a more or less equal footing on both the Republican and Democratic national committees with one woman member for every man member, given vice chairmanships and had special jobs created for them to encourage them to round up their sisters under the party standard.

The candidates never neglect to make soulful appeals to American womanhood and the party platforms continue to felicitate all concerned on the fact that the sexes now have equal rights. Many earnest gals go out and work their heads off in every state for one state of candidates or the other. Isn't it wonderful the way women are playing a bigger and bigger part in national affairs?

But after the votes are counted and all the male politicians prepare to line up for places, the ladies generally are taken for a sleigh ride and dumped into a deep snowbank. If a single one happens to get a finger into the gravy, it becomes a national sensation and everybody hears the drum in celebration of this new recognition of the way American women are forging ahead and taking their places beside the men.

Your correspondent can think of just about three women in the government service occupying really large and important jobs. They are: Mabel Walker Willebrandt, one of several assistant attorney generals; Civil Service commissioner Jessie Dell and Chairman Berrie Parker Bruckman of the United States Employees' Compensation Commission. Except for these women and perhaps a few holding minor positions the plums of the national patronage orchard appear to be regarded as forbidden fruit for their sex.

One hears vague rumors that Smith or Hoover would appoint the first woman cabinet member, but they're quite unsubstantiated. After looking over the roster of the executive departments as now constituted, one almost wonders how the government gets along with so few women.

The president's three secretaries and his executive clerk are all men. Owing to the tradition of feminine tact and diplomacy one might expect to find a few women in State Department jobs, but of about 50 such jobs considered important enough to list in the Congressional Directory one finds only two women to be among 20 or more assistants to the solicitor.

So many women these days handle the family budget that there ought to be a few in the Treasury Department, but there aren't. Clerks and stenographers, of course, as in all the departments, but we're not thinking of those. Of 15 administrative or executive jobs listed for the Treasury and its numerous subsidiary bureaus—internal revenue, customs, budget, public health and so on—we find that Mrs. Brownie Kerr is chief clerk of only a few years ago. He was accompanied to Milwaukee by his wife.

BOULDER DAM IS BIGGEST ISSUE IN STATE OF ARIZONA

Hoover May Lose Electoral Vote Because He Favors Project

Phoenix, Ariz., (P)—The muddy Colorado river rolls over national and state politics in Arizona and penetrates to the smallest chunk in every public question here.

Across the state boundary in southern California the proposed Boulder Canyon dam on the Colorado is a hot political topic, but in Arizona—and from an entirely different angle—it is the very breath of political life. The Colorado river question affects, besides these two, five other western states, but it reaches its maximum heat in Arizona.

This state, standing alone, demands recognition of certain rights she feels she has in the river waters before a move is made to dam and distribute them. So far, she asserts, she has not received that recognition.

SEPARATE STATE POLITICS

Arizona separates her state from her national politics, but she tints both liberally with Colorado river brown. She preferred a democratic president in 1916, but elected a republican governor. In 1920 the state gave both president and governor a republican majority, but in 1924 her governor was Democratic and her presidential choice republican.

Her democratic delegation to the Houston convention started with Smith and finished with him. Her republican delegation to Kansas City fought Hoover's nomination and stood by Frank O. Lowden of Illinois until Lowden left the race.

Republicans from this state wanted Lowden as G. O. P. candidate for two reasons: First, because he has a farm in Arizona, spends several months of the year there and was assumed to know the problems of state whose farm interests are growing by leaps and bounds; second, they favored Lowden over Hoover because the latter is a Californian by residence, and that point dragged in the Colorado river bogey, because to be a Californian in much of Arizona is to be in the camp

THE ENEMY IN THE BATTLE OF BOULDER DAM

SUPPORTED LOWDEN

When Lowden dropped from the race the Arizona G. O. P. delegates at Kansas City turned with as much grace as possible to the support of the secretary of commerce, but they frankly said that the same strong campaign could not be waged in their state for the Californian as could have been staged for the former Illinois executive, their farmer-neighbor and close friend.

In their governor, George W. P. Hunt, seeking re-nomination, the democrats have a colorful leader in state affairs who is as uncompromising on the Colorado river matter as he is emphatic in voicing his views.

Known as "Hell No" Hunt since a river conference at Denver, where he met virtually every counter proposition with those two words, the man who climbed from bus boy in a mining town restaurant to the gubernatorial chair faces the present campaign with the firm conviction that he will win. He has done so before, but in some instances by almost hair-line margins.

One other democrat, James H. Kerby, secretary of state, seeks the nomination. He is the only one of five candidates for governor who does not profess to have a solution for the Colorado river problem.

3 CANDIDATES

There are three republican candidates for the nomination, J. C. Phillips, prominent lawyer; Colera M. Stoddard, well known in mining circles; John H. Udall, attorney and former deputy prohibition enforcement agent for Arizona.

Farm interests rank next to the Colorado river question in importance from both the national and state viewpoints. With hundreds of thousands of its acres reclaimed from the desert and irrigated, Arizona, once known mainly for its great mineral deposits, is fast adding bulk to its permanent agricultural resources. Hence the existence here of a farm problem, and an irrigation development question, to say nothing of arguments on railroad rates, roads and taxation.

FARMERS URGED TO FATTEN POULTRY FOR FALL MARKET

PAMPHLET TELLS HOW TO PREPARE FOWLS FOR MARKET

Well Fattened Chickens Picked Clean Command Good Price, Experts Say

BY W. F. WINSEY
As quantities of surplus poultry are being marketed in an inferior condition at this time of the year and dealers and consumers are willing to pay higher prices for birds better fitted for the table, J. N. Kavanaugh, county agent, Green Bay, suggests that the poultry men fatten their birds before marketing them, that they use the latest methods in the cooperation and that they feed a ration designed for fattening. As a guide in methods and processes of fattening young birds for the market, Mr. Kavanaugh says that each poultry man should get from the College of Agriculture or from him, Circular 197, entitled, What the Poultry Market Wants, written by J. G. Halpin and C. E. Lammman.

For the use of farmers and poultry men until they can obtain Circular 197, Mr. Kavanaugh makes the following quotations from that circular: "The usual custom for home use is to chop off the head with an ax. This method is all right for home use, but it does not meet the market needs. As soon as a bird is killed and the blood has drained from the carcass, it should be scalded and plucked. It is a decided mistake to kill a chicken and then pick it some hours later. A chicken that has just been killed is much easier to pick than one in which the muscles started to harden. One of Wisconsin's expert poultry pickers says, 'Always get the hot water before you hunt the ax.'"

"When poultry is sold to a nearby trade, such as residents in the city or village or to the summer tourist trade, then it is most important that the poultry be cleanly plucked. Many people fail to get a good price for their poultry or to hold their customers because they do not take time to pluck the poultry clean. If a few pin feathers are left the fowl will not be attractive. The average poultry buyer does not want to have to finish plucking, but will pay more for inferior stock that is clean and nicely plucked."

"In all classes of livestock it is the universal practice to fatten or finish the animal for market."
"If this practice were more universally applied to the preparation of poultry, a more desirable product would be produced. This increases the demand and nets an additional profit to the producer. Too great a percentage of poultry is marketed at the convenience of the owner rather than when the poultry is fit and ready for the market."

The purpose of fattening poultry, as with livestock, is not only to increase the weight of the individual birds by the addition of flesh, but also to improve the quality of flesh. Good gains can be obtained only with the birds that are good feeders. Individuals that are husky vigorous in appearance, and have broad, deep heads, short beaks and broad bodies will make the best feeders. As a rule, stock of the heavier breeds from rapid growing, rapid feathering and early maturing strains, will make good gains when fattened.

"The gains, that can be produced in fattening, depend upon size, age, and breeding of the birds, the ration used, and the methods of feeding. It is possible to produce a greater gain in weight with young birds of smaller size than with more mature individuals, because in smaller birds, the gain is due to growth as well as to the addition of flesh. In numerous trials at this experiment station, it has been common to make young birds of broiler size gain a third of their original weight in two weeks."

"There are two methods ordinarily used to fatten poultry. The first is practiced when stock of any sort is to be sold alive and shipped. A ration of hard grains, consisting chiefly of corn, is generally fed because of shrinkage during transit, will not be so great as when soft mash feeds are given. Either skim milk or buttermilk should be given to drink. This method is generally used in finishing old hens for the market."

"Crate fattening is generally practiced to produce poultry meat of the very best quality for special trade. The extra quality of flesh produced by this method is due to the fact that the mash feeds, used under restricted conditions of exercise, tend to soften flesh."

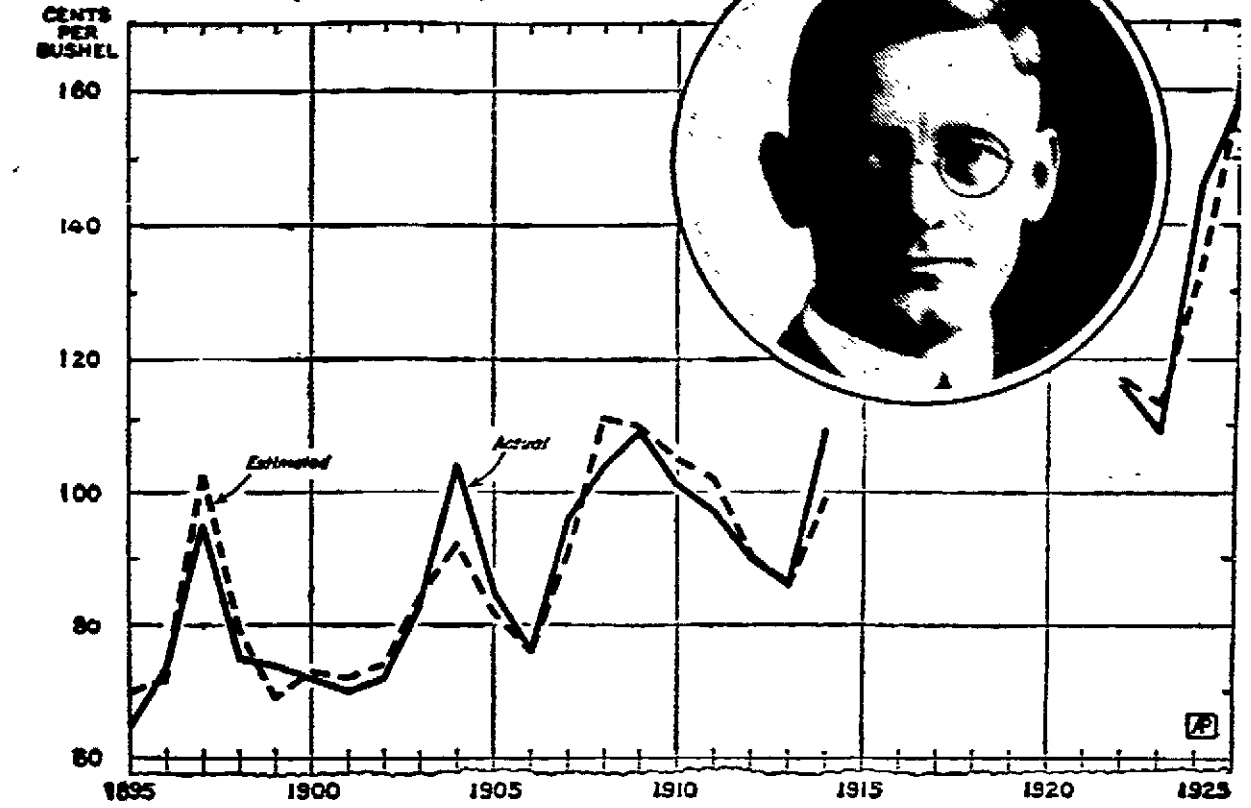

"When a large number of birds are to be fattened, standard fattening batteries are used to conserve floor space. These batteries are generally four decks high, each deck consisting of two pens, each about two and one half feet square. From five to ten birds, depending upon their size, are put in each. When a small number of birds are to be fattened, a home-made fattening crate can easily be made from a large box, by providing it with a slatted bottom and front, for which mesh may be used. A feeding trough is attached to the outside of the front."

"Good gains in crate feeding require a special system of feeding, which must be closely adhered to, if success is to be obtained. A ration consisting of a mash mixed with milk, is fed at regular intervals."

"A simple ration, which has consistently given excellent results at this experiment station, consists of a mash mixture containing 60 pounds of ground corn, 40 pounds of flour middlings and red dog, and one pound of salt. This mash is mixed with either skim milk or buttermilk to such a consistency that it will pour readily from the pail into the trough. This consistency will require a proportion of about one third mash mixture and two thirds milk by weight. Other mash mixtures which have proven successful are: No. 1 Ground corn, standard middlings and sifted ground oats, equal parts, by weight. No. 2. Equal parts by weight of ground corn, sifted ground oats and buckwheat. "Numerous trials indicate that good gains can be more easily obtained when milk is used to mix the mash. The milk is very desirable for the added palatability which it gives to the ration. At this station, when milk has been compared with meat

Farmers Want To Know More About Interpretation Of Market Conditions

WHEAT: U.S. AVERAGE PRICE AND ESTIMATED PRICE 1895-1914 and 1922-1925 (1928 estimate July)

Dr. O. C. Stine (inset), federal economist, believes the increasing demand for scientific market interpretations heralds vigorous application of business analysis to farm operations. The chart is called a typical illustration of the department's accuracy in forecasting wheat prices.

BY FRANK I. WELLER

Washington—(AP)—A new era in farm management, one in which the trained business analyst is as important as fertilizer or proper cultivation, is predicted by agricultural economists as a result of increased demands for market interpretations.

Dr. O. C. Stine, chief of the division of statistical and historical research in the federal bureau of agricultural economics, says the last year has brought a constantly increasing number of requests from farmers for production and market forecasts and for price predictions on agricultural products. They use the data, Dr. Stine explains, to adjust production to market demands and to sell their crops advantageously.

Further revealing the new turn in farm practice and management, the outlook conference of the department of agriculture has completed a survey which shows 18 state agricultural colleges, in addition to the federal government, now issuing frequently publications which make economic information available to farmers in more or less popular form. Several additional states, the conference says, contemplate the issuance of similar publications, aimed to present the basic factors which make up the current picture of production, movement, consumption and price of farm products.

The clarity with which these data are employed by farmers to adjust their business to changing economic conditions in domestic and world markets is considered indicative of the future importance of farm analysis.

In the matter of price forecasts the government eliminates cotton. Orders excluding this product were issued by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine following protests against the price statement of September 15 last year, which was blamed by southern members of congress for the sharp market decline at that time. It was contended that price forecasts by the government tended to fix prices and to cause them to be what they are forecasted to become.

Maintaining the attitude he held before the congressional investigating committee, Dr. Stine declared that the opinion of no man or group of men, even with the backing of the government, can change the real value of a crop. A large crop cannot be sold at the price of a small crop. Urging the importance of economic analysis for the farmer, Dr. Stine explains: "If market prices at the beginning of the season are too low, in view of supply and demand conditions, the farmers who know this can withhold from the market and wait with assurance of higher prices. If, on the other hand, market prices at the beginning of the season are higher than supply and demand conditions will support for the season, he can take advantage of this temporary situation and sell as long as prices are equal to or above the real value of the product for the season. In many years farmers undoubtedly could add millions of dollars to their income by planning marketing with a knowledge of the real value of the products."

In three years of price forecasting, Dr. Stine says, the government has based its predictions on its research as to what makes prices, and resultant statements have been about 90 percent correct.

NOBODY HOME

Scrap, far better results have been obtained from a mash mixture than 1 per cent of meat scrap or meat meal should be added to the mash, and water used to mix the mash to the desirable consistency. "It is necessary to starve the birds for about twelve hours after they have been put in the crates, and to bring them gradually to full feed on the new ration, by feeding sparingly for the first two days at least." "It is not practical to ship crate fattened birds alive, as the shrinkage, during transit, is too great. Furthermore, the bones of crate fattened birds become exceedingly brittle during the fattening period, so that the wing bones are easily broken in handling or during shipping."

FARM FACTS

The U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicts increased marketings and slaughter of lambs and a good world demand for wool in the next nine months. At the same time a warning is issued against further expansion of sheep production in the face of this high demand.

Dairy products manufactured in 1927, except cheese, exceeded the 1926 volume, reports the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

About one-seventh the commercial crop of cabbage in the United States goes to the consumer in the form of sauerkraut. In one recent year sauerkraut production amounted to $2,500,000. Sauerkraut, by the way, is of Asiatic origin—not German—say government experts.

The Federal Food and Drug Act prohibits the use of artificial color in cottage cheese. It might deceive the purchaser by concealing the inferiority of the product.

Livestock producers should write to the Bureau of Animal Industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C., for Miscellaneous Publication 25-31. It's "A Calendar of Livestock Operations," and covers the most important activities in the prevention of livestock parasites from month to month.

BUMPER CORN CROP DAMAGED BY STORM

Roots Pulled Up by Heavy Wind Cause Plants to Lose Nourishment

BY W. F. WINSEY

According to the opinion of farmers, the corn that was flattened by the storm Monday night is seriously damaged. As the brace roots of the stalks on the side exposed to the storm were torn loose from the ground along with the entire root system on that side, there is no possibility of the stalks taking an upright position again nor for them to get their customary rations from the soil.

As a result of the work of the storm, former estimates of a bumper crop of corn in this vicinity must be reduced to a considerable extent, harvesting the corn will commence earlier than was expected, and the corn will be very difficult to harvest as it is tangled and down.

FERTILIEZ SEED TO IMPROVE CROP

Professor Announces Method of Supplying Phosphorus to Grains

Berkeley, Cal.—What looks like a practical method of fertilizing the seed of some varieties of barley and wheat, so that they may grow to maturity in soil deficient in phosphorus, an essential element for growth, has just been announced by W. F. Gerike, associate plant physiologist at the University of California.

Gerike has succeeded in developing a method of treating seed grain on a large scale, before planting, with its viability or life strength.

Thus he makes it possible for grain to be grown in soil deficient in phosphorus without more costly fertilization of the entire field. Further investigations under field conditions, however, will have to be made before the process can be adopted generally.

Agricultural experts point out that this process, if proven feasible, will be of special value to farmers in many parts of Europe, Australia and Africa, where there are large areas deficient in phosphorus. This, Gerike explains, is due partly to long and intensive cultivation of the soil and partly to the fact that certain soils convert phosphorus into an insoluble salt which plants cannot use.

The seed treatment method, storing the necessary phosphorus within the seed itself, obviates both these difficulties.

Phosphorus is the only substance with which Gerike has been able to obtain favorable results in seed treatment. Nitrogen and potassium, the other two important fertilizers, fail to respond.

The seed treatment method can be used only where a large mass of seed is required for a unit area of land.

Cheese Sales Totaled 330,877,327 Pounds and Sold for $77,483,172

MADISON—(AP)—Wisconsin's dairy products for 1927 had a value of more than a quarter of a billion dollars. The state dairy and food companies place the total value of such products at $290,483,172.74.

The production of cheese amounted to 330,877,327 pounds with a value of $77,483,172.74. Butter ranked second with 138,732,145 produced in factories valued at $17,738,755.87 and 729,674 pounds of farm made butter with a value of $2,324,000.

Total production of cottage, skim milk, cheese and cooked and butter milk cheese was 3,854,791 pounds whose value was $35,115.45.

Value of condensation products of the year was $1,203,857.75. Other production figures, and valuations are: Ice cream, 7,513,560 gallons, $5,015,163.39; Ice cream, mix, 19,722,555 pounds $1,771,457.19; milk, other than furnished cheese factories, butter factories, condenseries and ice cream plants, 600,313,335 pints $2,518,637.07; skim milk, 3,007,746,600 pounds, $15,038,650.00; whey, 2,579,452,002, $6,722,195; $-57,000.16; milk shipped out of state 416,425,545 pounds, $10,563,722.70; cream shipped out of state, 96,499,413 pounds, $15,070,533.61.

Plymouth—If Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman hadn't "thrown his monkey wrench into the taxation system," there would be no state tax, Senator John J. Blaine told a campaign audience today.

"The income tax has become a fixed policy of this state," he said, "and it should be developed more and more until there is no state tax on the farm home and the business."

New industries are benefited by the income tax law, he said, because they pay no income tax during the early years of their struggle for existence.

LESS WINTER WHEAT TO BE SOWN THIS YEAR

MADISON—(AP)—Farmers of the United States plan to sow but 46,523,000 acres of winter wheat this fall, or 2.1 per cent less than was shown last year, according to intention reports received by the state and federal crop reporting service.

The acreage is about 6 per cent or nearly three million acres less than was indicated by the intentions report of Aug. 1, last year.

The crop reporting service emphasizes that the 46,523,000 acres is not a forecast of the number that will be planted, but is merely based on farmers' intentions on Aug. 1. It is made public in order that growers may modify their plans if they find a change be desirable.

According to Wisconsin crop reporters the intended winter wheat acreage for this fall is 65,000, as compared with 68,000 a year ago—a decrease of 4 per cent.

Wisconsin farmers also report an intended acreage of rye of 206,000 as compared to 221,000 acres sown a year ago, a decrease of 7 per cent.

STATE WARNS FARMERS ABOUT BUYING SEEDS

MADISON—(AP)—Beware even in the seed buying business, seems to lead the state's warning. But it shouldn't. A. H. Whitt, agronomist at the state agricultural college warns farmers that just because some "foreign" seed firm prices are glowing ads and is prepared to furnish fine seeds, it does not follow that there are not good seeds produced at its neighbor's place or the village feed and seed store.

Add to this, he says, the fact that it is often more expensive to plant seeds that have proved successful in the locality.

TRADING ON DAIRY MARKET WAS FAIR

State Department Says There Were Slight Increases on Butter

MADISON—(AP)—Fair trading on the butter, cheese and livestock markets during the past week is reported by the state department of markets.

There were a few fractional increases on butter. Skimmed were limited especially those of lower and medium grades and demand was active. Toward the end of the week trade became quiet. Supplies of all grades were limited but ample to the high demand. At the close of the week supplies of medium and lower grades were limited. Centralized car market supplies were light. However, buyers were not showing much interest, and supplies were ample to the demand. Old storage holdings of butter at the four principal markets on August 23 amounted to 34,599,833 pounds as compared with 34,626,233 pounds on the same day last year. Butter prices are 3 1/2 cents higher than last year at this time.

The cheese production situation remains unchanged. It is reported that output is just about holding its own. In general the volume of make seems to be on about a par with a year ago. Pasture conditions have improved as a result of recent rains and weather conditions have become more favorable. Cold storage holdings of cheese

What you get when you buy Ford Coke

Ford Coke

Product of the Ford Motor Company

FORD COKE is practically all heat, and that's what you want in fuel. You pay for weight, but you buy heat. In producing Ford Coke the weight of the soot and smoke that you pay for in coal has been removed, but the heat remains.

The quality of Ford Coke is exceptional and is uniform. Ford Coke is made by the Ford Motor Company in its own coke ovens, from coal mined in its own mines, and is used in the Company's own work. This work requires coke of uniformly high quality. Intricate manufacturing processes cannot tolerate variation in this quality. The coke you buy and the coke the Ford Motor Company uses are the same. Both are Ford Coke.

Right now it is selling at attractive prices. This is the most advantageous of all times in the year to buy it. Any of the dealers listed in this advertisement can supply you with Ford Coke in any quantity and in any size you wish. Get in touch with one of them and order this most satisfactory of household fuels right now.

Let'er Come!

Storms mean nothing to your house when it has been storm-proofed by the generation-old painters... a skilled painter and pure lead paint.

"STRANGE—the feeling of safety that paint gives you about your house," said an owner recently. "After my painter finished his job, I felt like saying to the weather, 'You can't harm this house!'"

Every property-owner can enjoy that same feeling of security by employing a skilled painter and pure lead paint. No new partnership—this, but one that has existed for generations. It is carried on today by master painters who use Dutch Boy white-lead—the basis of pure lead paint... tough, durable, weather-proof.

Low in cost, too Pure lead paint is not high in price. It costs no more per gallon than any paint worthy of the name. And in final cost, it is exceedingly economical because

THE ROUGH PATH OF GLORY

The paths of glory are not always pleasant. Gene Tunney, ex-marine, all-time scholar, pugilist, de luxe, has concluded that there isn't a great deal of happiness in life where that life is accompanied with constant notoriety.

There are times when one wishes to be alone, when a little solitude is a pleasant thing, but Tunney has been unable to find anything of that nature. It was pleasant enough at first to be followed by a gang of small boys and big ones, to be pointed out at every step, to be the cynosure of all eyes, but to every ordinary
man that sort of a life gets pretty tiresome.

Perhaps Tunney thought that his voluntary retirement from the ring would give him relief, that he would be let alone, but it has only appeared to heighten the public interest in him.

Recently he sailed to England, no doubt with the opinion that the English,
slow to enthuse, would pay no attention
to him but even there his pathway is blocked at every turn by crowds curious to see him. He can find no privacy. When he retires to his room the bells are jangled by reporters and other interviewers. His entry into a dining room means a suspension of all other business. He cannot take a walk, a ride, go to the theatre,
enter a shop, hop a bus without a gaping throng following on. So he decided to go to Ireland but he found the news had gotten out ahead of him and his train
through England was besieged by rustics who wanted to see the big fighter. His fellow passengers wanted his signature.
Everyone carrying a camera wanted a picture. And Gene is polite and hates to refuse. Upon the shores of his forefathers
he found the performances repeated all over again with even greater intensity.
He cannot get away from the crowds.
Even in the South Sea Islands he would be an object of curiosity.

And it is not only because the people
love a winner, but they admire a clean
one.

THE LUCKY SCOUT

Paul Sisle, the Boy Scout who has been chosen to go with the Byrd expedition to the South Pole, is probably looked upon by a million or so other Scouts as a lucky chap. His luck, however, as such luck usually is, must be based on some pretty solid preparation. In the seven and a half years that he has been a Scout, Paul has earned 60 merit badges, some of them for work which rarely is accomplished by a boy his age. He is also a Sea Scout, having earned the rank of mate in that organization. He must have shown some excellent qualities of courage, persistence, ambition and skill to go
as far as he has in the Scout organization.
Other personal characteristics, too, no
doubt figured in his selection.

To the millions of boys just reaching the age for Scout membership, this organization will give added urge and inspiration.

POLITICAL UPS AND DOWNS

Frank B. Kellogg was once United States senator from Minnesota. The people of that state deicated him for re-election, putting forth one Magnus Johnson in his stead. They did this primarily because Kellogg was straightforward and sincere and the people wanted some promises. They received the promises in prolific form from Magnus. Of course the promises weren't carried out. Kellogg knew they couldn't be, that is why he wouldn't make them. Magnus didn't know whether they could or not but he was obliging enough to make them.

The administration at Washington realizing Kellogg's splendid equipment for public life sent him to occupy the difficult post of ambassador to Great Britain.
Thereafter he became Secretary of State,
while the people of Minnesota staring in short order of Magnus and his unfulfilled
dreams yanked him out of the senate.
What Minnesota lost the country gained.

SUNBATH SPREES

As the gospel of the sun bath spreads, people tend to go on sunlight sprees. A clerk in an office who has no part of his anatomy tanned but the end of his nose
will go to the nearest beach, put on an abbreviated bathing suit and bask in the hot sun for hours, until he is burnt almost to a crisp. If sunshine is good, he argues, the more the better. And the sun does feel good to him—for a while. Then he spends painful days and weeks of nights getting over it.

Sunburn is as bad as any other kind of burn. Severe sunshine may even endanger life. At the least, the powerful ultra-violet rays, piercing through a white skin for a longer period than that skin can comfortably endure, produce an annoying inflammation and fill the system full of poison which takes time to eliminate. The person with a sun-bath hangover is almost as bad as the person
with an alcoholic hangover.

The United States Public Health Service has been giving warning against overdoing the sun bath, especially for helpless babies. It is a wonderful preventive or cure for tuberculosis and rickets,
and a general tonic for people of any age;
but it must be suited to the patient's endurance. First exposure, the Health Service explains, should be only for a few minutes, the period being lengthened
gradually as the subject develops a protective coat of tan. Eventually little children can endure an hour of strong sunlight morning and afternoon, and older persons more.

The old Greeks, who worshipped Apollo,
the Sun God, and sought sunshine
more than any other civilized people, had the right idea about it. Apollo, they said, was the giver of life. And also the destroyer of life. The worshipper was supposed to know how far to go.

Some present-day doctors, treating patients for rickets, anemia and other ailments, frankly prefer artificial sunlight—
produced by ultra-violet lamps—to natural sunlight. That is because they are able by such means to control the amount of light the patient receives.

THE HUSBAND OF MOLLY STARK

The month of August marks the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of John Stark, one of those rugged generals of the Revolution whose former memory will live long beside that of Israel Putnam, Seth Warner, Ethan Allen and Dan Morgan, one who left his plow and gave to the Revolution a rare leadership, the leadership of an original and forceful character.

It was Stark who led the American forces at the battle of Bennington routing
the Hessian mercenaries under General Baum, forcing from the mortally wounded Baum the statement, "They fought more like hell hounds than soldiers." It was at this battle that Stark uttered to his raw troops the never-dying expression, "There they are, boys! We beat them today or Molly Stark's a widow." And he too it was who in leading his troops into the battle of Bunker Hill gave the terse order: "Boys, aim at their waist bands."

Yet Stark did not live out his military career without learning the ingratitude
and the hopeless inefficiency of a military system that was run by a political congress, and in disgust and chagrin he resigned his commission and retired to his farm. Washington realizing his value as a leader and as a fighter brought him back to the firing line. Washington had many problems of this character. It was his patience, as his honor and uprightness, that held the revolutionary troops together and directed them finally to victory.

General Coxey says we are in the hands of burlars, bootleggers, bankers and brokers. The general must have forgotten all about the league between cheating gun manufacturers and stenographers.

taining to health. Writer's names are never

ORRIS ROOT IS NOT TO BE SNEEZED AT
In season and out of season there are a good many cases of hay fever or apparent asthma, or nondescript conditions that correspond now to one
and now to the other, which baffle the diagnostic efforts of the best doctors—that is, if the whole business is not attributed to "another cold" and all further interest to find out what does all the sufferer is suppressed.

In the season—that is, within the period of the year when pollen is in the air, the specific pollen
to which one happens to be sensitized—it is more difficult to diagnose these near asthma cases than it is when the patient has symptoms out of season.
There are so many kinds of pollen that may be responsible for hay fever or asthma and before the physician can fairly decide that the trouble is pol-lino-sus at least certain groups of pollens must be excluded by skin tests. And if it seems reasonable to assume that the trouble is not from pollen, then there remains a long list of other protein substances
to which the individual may happen to be sensitive and it is up to the doctor to decide whether or which proteins to select for testing the patient's sensitivity. Just as an index to the extent of probabili-ties, here are a few of the protein substances that are found responsible for many cases of asthma:

Horse dander, cat hair, dog hair, goose feathers,
carnary feathers, dust, many face powders, face
pinks, aspirin, packs, cleaning powders, lice, bacteria (perhaps in some hidden or neglected focus of infection).

Dr. Ray M. Baleat of Oklahoma City reports quite a number of hay fever or asthma cases in which the inciting factor is orris root. He says that orris root is an ingredient of many face powders, face
pinks, aspirin, packs, cleaning powders, and
creams, scented talcs, bath powders, tooth powders, soaps, and orris oil is used in many synthetic perfumes. Persons who are sensitive to orris root are affected by most scented cosmetics, which contain orris root or the oil.

If the physician suspects orris root and finds by skin test that the patient is sensitized, he may desensitize the patient by a course of weekly hypo-dermic injections of gradually increasing doses of orris extract, beginning with homeopathic doses,
just as in the treatment of hay fever when the
specific pollen has been determined by the skin test.
Dr. Baleat reports that orris root sensitized "colds"
which come to a sudden "cold" in the winter time,
after the course of specific orris root therapy.

There is a fairly frequent condition, not exactly asthma, nor yet hay fever, but sometimes mimicking these, yet manifesting itself in what has been called the "machine gun sneeze," that is, frequent sudden attacks of sneezing, that often come to a sudden stop, and are usually around the ethmoid cells or sinus in the roof of the nose.

No doubt a great many moderate, more or less periodic conditions pass as "colds" when in fact
they are manifestations of some specific protein sensitization, the patient coming in contact with the specific protein now and again, and unknowingly
ascribing his asthma, hay fever or hyperesthetic
rhinitis to "another cold."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mutilation

While I was in camp I foolishly had a design tattooed on my arms. Now I regret it and wish to know how to remove that tattooing. (Joe) Answer—It must have been a poor fellow conducted camp if such mutilation was permitted there. The human body is a sacred thing and the person who
so mutilates it is ought to be punished by the law.
Probably the only way to remove the mark is surgical excision of the skin, followed by implantation of a graft of normal skin to fill the defect. Tattooing, except for the purpose of concealing scars or other blemishes, ought to be made a penal offense.

Is Bathing Safe?

Does taking a bath do you any harm, or washing your hair during the change of life? (Mrs. D. F. H.)
Answer—I have suffered no ill effects as yet, but then, I haven't a lot of hair to wash, and as for bathing, I am temperamentally partial to the dry cleaning method. Of course taking a bath or a shampoo never does any harm at any time.

Smoking Girls

I am a girl 19 and have been smoking for about a year. I am to be married in December and mother says I must not smoke for it will harm me later in my life. I smoke an average of two or three cigarets a day. (G. O.)
Answer—Do not believe it will harm you anymore than it would if you were a boy. However, a person under 21 should not smoke at all, in the best interest of health. So I should agree with mother that now is the time for you to brace up and try to be a woman, a fit candidate for motherhood.

CALLING MR. SCHMIEGE

Here is an open letter to Oscar J.
Schmiege, candidate for assemblyman
from the First District of Outagamie county.

My dear Mr. Schmiege:

I have your letter of August 16, in which you refer to an article written by me which appeared some time ago in a Sturgeon Bay paper. You are kind enough to inform me in your letter "that unless retraction is made for this article." You will see me for "Malicious Slander." You further state as follows: "I am giving you ample time to either prove on or before August 22nd these remarks, or else have suitable retraction made."

I would much rather not write this letter to you in the heat of harvest
and press of farm work at this time,
but your threat of an impending law
suit leaves me no other alternative.

The article, which I was called upon to write, was in reply to an address made by a gentleman of Door county, which had appeared in the same paper. My article referred to a Door County situation exclusively.
It related to a bridge at Sturgeon Bay, and discussed a scheme proposed by which the Senator and Assemblyman of the district could get state aid for the bridge. Mr. Schmiege was not thought of.

I don't know then, and I do not know now, that you are running for office; nor am I concerned whether you are or not.

There was, however, a political contest on in Door county, and the part of my article touching that contest included the following statement:
"To send a boy who is taking a course in law to represent a district
is not fair to the boy or to the district. He cannot do both. We had some boy assemblymen taking law in the last session, and the taxpayers
will pay dearly for the experience."

While that article was written to apply to a situation in Door county, it is nevertheless absolute truth, and I stand by every word of it. So if the coat fits, wear it. I repeat, no student can keep up his studies in law at the University of Wisconsin and do his duty by his district and the state
in a session of the legislature at the same time.

This is no disgrace to a student; it just can't be done, and a student who tries to prove it by, not because I want to, but because you compel me to.

Let me call your attention to some of the big tax bills of the last regular session. Let us begin with 4348, which is the Stallwart income tax measure passed by the last legislature. This law undermines the Progressive income tax law of 1925, changes the exemptions, wipes out in effect the penalty for tax dodging and it is claimed, favors corporations and punishes the individual.

The roll call by which this bill passed the Assembly shows you as absent. See page 2415, Assembly Journal, 1927.

452A was a bill which increases the school fund tax from 7-tenths to 11-tenths mills on all the property of the state; it wipes out all the appropriation of the money on the basis of the number of children in the districts
and makes the allotment on the number of teachers (the more teachers,
the more money the district gets, as the bill came from the Assembly). It involves a state tax of nearly six million dollars, and forces the districts, before they can get any money
from the fund, to tax themselves
nearly four million dollars more or a tax totalling nearly ten million dollars. You knew of this bill, for you are recorded as voting on the measure early in the session, but on the subsequent roll call when the bill was passed you are recorded as absent.
See Journal, page 1956.

The taxpayers of my district will be molested by this law out of $49,000 a year according to figures submitted
by the authors of the measure.

Then let us turn to 6113, the big University appropriation bill, carrying millions of dollars in taxes, including many thousands of dollars for positions and salaries more than ever before. Some of us voted against the measure because we thought this is no time to make big salaries at the University bigger, when people are losing their homes. The bill passed, and when it passed the Assembly the roll call shows you as being absent.
Page 2557.

Now let us take up 526A, a tax
measure which appropriated approximately 5 million dollars from the State treasury to high schools. This bill did not pass. When it was voted on in the Assembly the roll call shows
you as being absent.

Here are four big tax bills of the 1927 session totaling 25 million dollars, three of which passed, and you are recorded in the Journal as being absent on all of them.

You are recorded on page 591 of the Journal as voting for 23A, which passed. This law now increases the tuition high schools may charge farmers in their town taxes from $72 to $105 a year per student. Governor
Blaine vetoed a similar bill in 1915.

On these five big tax bills of the 1927 session you were present and voted at one. You were absent on the others.

I do not condemn you for this. You were busy with your law studies, no doubt. You could not do both and your record fully proves my statement to be correct. There is no reason why you should do better in future when not encumbered with so much other work.

What I do condemn is your letter.
Yours truly,
Senator John Schmiege.

"LOVE FOR TWO"

by Ruth Dewey Groves
1928 By N. E. A. Service, Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BERTIE LOU WARD, on the eve of her wedding to ROD BRYER, receives a sharp-edged paper knife as a gift from LILA MARSH—the prettiest girl in town—who had turned Rod down because he was not wealthy.

The feel of the metal chilled her. And the thought that it was a dagger to pierce her happiness flashed across her mind so that her dreaming anticipation turned to miserable foreboding. But Bertie Lou courageously resolves not to be jealous of Rod's past love affair. His future is in her keeping.

Bertie Lou receives a second blow to her pride when she accidentally overhears one bridesmaid ask another if she thinks the bride likes being second choice. She goes through the ceremony in a daze, but when Rod whispers "My wife" with a world of wonder and adoration in his eyes, she knows that she would rather be second choice than to give him up.

They spend an ideal honeymoon and Bertie Lou almost forgets the shadow cast by the predatory ex-sweetheart until they return and find Lila assuming the role of dictator on the ground that she knows what Rod likes. Both the bride and her mother resent this, but no amount of polite hinting affects Lila's determination to annoy. Finally, in desperation, Bertie Lou says sweetly, "Suppose you come in and cook for us. You're so willing and Rod enjoys your efforts so much."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER IV
The honors were Bertie Lou's. It was infuriating to Lila to be told that she'd been discussed by her former sweetheart and his bride.

Rod looked at Bertie Lou in astonishment. He couldn't remember having said anything about Lila's cooking.

Lila's poppy rouge suddenly appeared in strange contrast to the natural color that flamed in her cheeks. Bertie Lou smiled at it.

But Lila wasn't defenseless. She still had a stroke or two left in her sword arm. "I dare say he remembers my devil-food cake," she said with a laugh. "Rod always liked to eat himself a piece of cake, didn't you, big boy?"

Rod began to wake up. Lila's laugh was mocking, reminiscent. He remembered in a flash the slang of a year or so ago, and flushed duly red. A helpless male between two of the deader species.

"I guess I'll help your mother in the kitchen, Bertie Lou," he blurted. "Excuse me, Lila. See you later."

Lila could now leave in satisfaction. Rod's upset gave her a moment of victory. It showed that she still had the power to disturb him. And that flush, merely one of embarrassment, so closely resembled the flag of guilt that Lila knew it must make Bertie Lou wonder.

Bertie Lou slammed the door when Lila was half way down the stairs and stood trembling with nervous anger. Bertie Lou dashed away a tear of exasperation and started to the bedroom to take off her traveling dress and get into something cooler and fresher. She could hear the rattle of dishes in the kitchen—it hardly seemed possible that it was her kitchen—and knew that Rod was helping her mother.

She had looked forward with dreaming delight to her homecoming with Rod—a homecoming far, far different from this. She had hoped they wouldn't be met—that they could come quietly to their simple little nest and settle themselves in their own blissful way.

But it was nice to have friends. Bertie Lou's smile vanished and a worried young face appeared in the glass before which she brushed out her heavy, halfgrown bob.

"Don't look like a 'frail-cat,' she adjured the reflection. "Rod isn't a mouse for two cats' right over. And he wouldn't marry a girl unless he loved her. The dear boy doesn't know it, but he's romantic to the very darling heart of him. Marriage had to be for him what it is to me—love for two."

She felt better after that and hurriedly pinned her hair into a tight knot so she could bathe her face and neck in cold water. Her mother came into the bedroom while she was in the adjoining bath.

"Bertie Lou, I'm going home now,"

Mrs. Ward called. "But there's something I want to say to you first."

"All right, Mums, I'll be out in just a minute. Soon's I get a yard or two of railroad right-of-way off my neck."

Mrs. Ward stepped back to the bedroom door and closed it. She had a feeling that Rod might think she was intruding, but she couldn't go before she had spoken to Bertie Lou.

Bertie Lou soon came out of the bathroom, most of her visible beyond the scant limits of an orchid silk brevity set. She unstrapped one of the suitcases and dug out a Coohe coat of embroidered pongee and threw it around her shoulder.

"What's the 'quick Watson' stuff, Mums?" she teased, climbing to cross-legged comfort on the chintz-covered bed.

Her mother looked at her with troubled eyes before she took a seat on a chair, refusing Bertie Lou's hand-conveyed invitation to sit on the bed. "Spoils a mattress to sit on the edge of it," she said as she had said many times before to Bertie Lou. "You must take care of your pretty things honey."

Bertie Lou's eyes sobered. "I'm afraid I'll be a bum housekeeper, Mums. But if I make Rod happy . . ."

"Are you happy?" her mother asked softly accenting the pronoun. "You know that Lila worries me, don't you?" Bertie Lou returned as softly. There was perfect understanding between them at that moment. They were closer than they ever had been before. For Bertie Lou was not laughing at life as she'd always done before. On can't fear a great loss until there is something very dear to lose.

"I was afraid she would. You can't be friendly with her, Bertie Lou. I think you'd better tell her the first chance you get that you think it best not to visit each other."

Bertie Lou emitted a short, dry laugh. "Mums, you'd fight the next war with Civil War weapons if they made you chief of staff," she said. "Don't you know that I can't forbid the house to anyone who comes to see Rod? In the new order the house is his as well as mine."

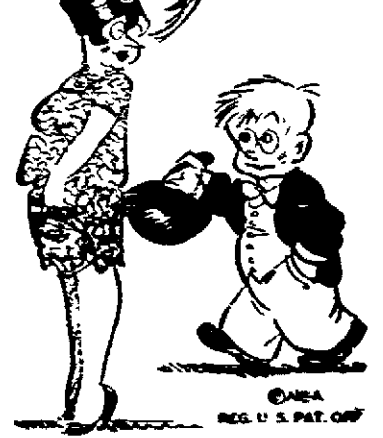

"Well, then, let him tell her!" Bertie Lou groaned. "Shades of Queen Victoria! Can you picture Rod doing that?"

"You can tell him so, can't you?" "Tives aren't trusts any more, Mums. We don't want to succeed by stamping out opposition. I'll do everything I can to make Rod love me—but nothing to make him hate Lila."

Mrs. Ward looked worried. "Yes, but honey, you know he must have cared a great deal for her at one time. I can't believe that she won't have some attraction for him still if she cares to exert it. Lila is very pret ty in her way, and I've noticed that it's a way the cove seem to admire."

Bertie Lou unpinched her hair and went over to the dresser to do it properly. "Rod says I'm the prettiest girl in the world," she said during the process. "I'm not afraid of Lila taking him away from me. But it makes me mad to have her trying to cook up a triangle out of her old love affair with Rod and our marriage. I don't mean a regular triangle, but a silly three-cornered mess that will just keep the town talking and have people asking each other how they think I like being second choice."

The last words came slowly, reluctantly, as though she hated the sound of them. Her mother regarded her silently for a moment and then got up to go.

"There's a steak and some cleaned vegetables in the icebox for your supper if you feel like cooking it," she

YOUR CHILDREN

A doctor who had been called in for the third time in one week by an anxious mother made the remark, "The boy has a sore throat but the mother is the sicker of the two. She needs a mind specialist. She has herself and the child and the whole house so worked up over nothing. I don't know what would happen if the child were really very ill. What's more, watch the boy grow up helpless and weak."

Now it would be foolish to jump to the conclusion that a boy will grow up into a nervous hypochondriac, as we like to call people who imagine themselves ill, just because his mother is worried when he runs a temperature, but very likely this doctor knew more about the family than is here quoted. There was a grandmother in that house as nervously solicitous as the mother. And it was true that the boy was bundled off to bed upon the slightest provocation.

Once I met a little chap playing in the sand on the beach. "Well, Buddy, how are you today?" I said sociably, looking approvingly at his sun-burned little torso, with nothing between him and the weather but a strip around his middle, given the dignified name of "sun-suit."

"Oh, I'm well today, but mother says it would be just like me to be sick in bed tomorrow," was the startling reply.

Anticipation. I can't think it is right or normal for mothers to keep the fear of sickness in their own minds or in the minds of their children. Certainly children will get sick. But try looking at it this way: "I feed Johnny the food I know he should have. I keep him warm and dry. He gets enough rest and sleep. He has work to do but that doesn't hurt him. He must study but that is right too. When he gets a spell of sickness we will do the best we can to make him better, but not get excited or hysterical about it, and what is more, not keep the house in hot water all the time because he might get sick again."

Children are born with certain fears. The unnamed fears, those vague forebodings that specialists give various names to, but cannot exactly analyze, are often felt by the over-anxious mother. Such children have a well-developed fear of death. What is all this pessimism and worry about their little sick-spells going to do to them?

Teach them common sense about avoiding illness—that they must not overeat, or stuff on candy, or sit in wet shoes and clothes. But don't stress the idea of sickness itself. Don't let it stand like an enormous bugaboo casting a shadow over your home and happiness.

Among the new materials for millinery are long-haired fabrics such as velvet, hatter's plush, and modified beavers. Fur hats will be popular later.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tiniest practiced quite a while. The big band master had to smile to hear the funny sounds they made, but he was very kind. "Don't be impatient, boys," he cried. "There's nothing learned if nothing's tried. If you keep on at practicing, you'll soon know, how, you'll find."

They kept right at it through the day. At last the band man said, "Well, I say. I think you all have done real well. Your harmony's just grand. We'll call you the Tiniest band. Now, there's a name that really grand. You've learned a couple pieces, so I'll let you play tonight."

The Tiniest didn't mind a bit. In fact this plan made quite a hit, and when the show was on at night they marched around the ring and played the two tunes that they knew. Although the clapping grew and grew, the Tiniest had to quit. They didn't know another thing.

"Oh, we are in a awful fix," cried

RICH FALL COLORS AND SOFT MATERIALS

At the top of the world of fall fashions: Left upper, an ostrich band and plumage distinguish a catwaba hatters' plush chapeau; lower, gold velvet and bandeau of ecru lace fashion a sumptuous bridesmaid's hat. Upper right: The brim of a hatter's plush model folds back like a fan; lower, flatterer shaded ostrich lines the crown of a new rose beige bonnet.

BY JULIA BLANSHARD

NEW YORK—The skyline of the world of fashion is changing. Hats for fall show new lines, heights, depths, angles and curves. And the media change as to the lines, producing fascinating effects.

Black chapeaux still cast their stylish shadows. But made of hatter's plush fur, velvet or silk, they take on a softness that is extremely flattering and feminine.

Autumn turns many new hats the color of September leaves—golden browns, rich reds, burnt orange, deep brown and henna. All of these tones are excellent for new millinery.

The authentic hat this fall will be an individual affair, a hat with personality and charm. Gone from the picture is the uniformed felt. To be smart this autumn a hat must have its own color, material, peculiar cut or trimming or an ornamentation not only new but surprisingly lovely.

NEW HAT FACTS

There are a few hat facts that might aid the woman of taste in choosing headgear that will do her justice. Of course personal taste, the costume with which a hat is to be worn and the occasions for which it is bought, all are primary considerations.

But winter millinery that is advanced and in good taste, has the following characteristics:

Most brims are off the face in front. Turban, cloche and swathed types around. With these no hair should show.

Crowns seem lower, especially in front.

Brimms are very irregular and are at their best when folded and cut this way or that to achieve a smart profile view. The wider right side is one sign of winter chic.

Hats may sound an exotic note—be Spanish with a bandeau like a torero's, swathed like an Arab's or wound around the head, like the Persian's kerchief chapeau.

Few hats have only self-trimming. This is a season of sumptuousness, and the luxurious touches that decorate new hats testify to that fact. Feather fancies, choice ornaments of fur, ribbon, velvet, hatter's plush, lace and braid all bespeak the new mode. We shall see fewer shiny metal ornaments. Subtler decorations make a feminine appeal.

There is a new formality in daytime hats. Each seems more a dress hat than those of last year. Evening hats have a mode all their own this autumn, with colorful feather toques, turbans or gold and silver sequins or colored metal lace quite the thing.

OF FUR AND FELT

Distinctive and stunningly new is the black-white turban of fur and felt that has the feeling of the wound kerchief in the way its white felt swathes the head and flings its slashed ends off the right side from the rear.

This turban combines many of the new features of fall millinery in its chic smallness. The black fur snugly covers over the head to produce a shallower crown effect, the white felt unites with the fur in a manner to suggest the beret and the complete creation achieves that tailored, close-to-the-head line that is a new as it is smart.

Exotically stunning is the picture hat of gold colored velvet with a Spanish bandeau of ecru lace. Here is the hat for a bride-to-be, or for wear with a stunning period frock to a formal afternoon affair.

Tony Tarver found Sandy Ross in one of the long, low sheds of Stanton's commercial aviation field. She threw up a hand in a gay salute, then watched the boy who had been brother and chum and Father Confessor to her, lounge unhurriedly toward her.

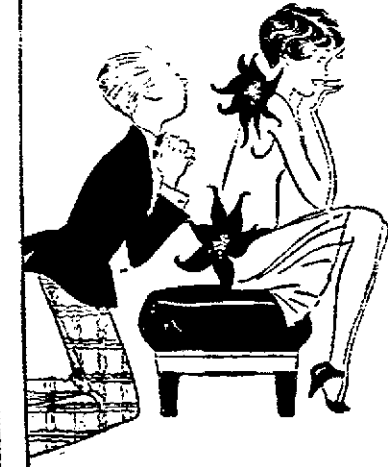

She liked his leanness and his great height; his shock of wiry, sand-colored hair, and his lean, long face, sand-colored too, from wind and weather. As a child, Sandy had been very freckled. Tony had often told him that his eyes were freckled, too, for there were glittering little slivers of green and bronze all through the sand color that blended with his hair and skin.

"Quit squinting at me as if I were a speck on a far horizon. Lone Eagle," Tony challenged when Sandy reached her. "How are you, Sandy? By the way, I'm sore at you. Here I've been bragging that you're the greatest flyer in the world, and you go and let Linbergh get all the glory. When are you going to hop off for a trans-Atlantic flight?"

"Hi, Pest," Sandy drawled, offering her a big brown hand that he had just wiped clean of grease upon his sand-colored overalls.

"Ain't got no business on the other

SPECIAL PAPER GIVES FALSE STORY OF DEATH

THE 75-year-old mother of a murdered woman in Evanston, Ill., did not know how her daughter had met death. She had been told that the woman had been injured in an automobile accident. So the Evanston News-Index, the paper which the old mother read, printed one special copy, just for her, with a fictitious story about the accident, even as newshykes were selling thousands of other copies with lurid details of the murder.

We talk about this callous, money-mad world in which we live. Here's a story which rather denies it.

"He answered her complaint and her question laconically. 'Come take a drive. Pat's given me a roadster. There's a father that understands the wild younger generation,' Tony grinned up at him, well content with his greeting.

"Can't. Busy. Big crowd of joy flyers this afternoon. Gotta get my plane in shape," Sandy answered.

With no other man in the world would proud Tony have pleaded for a date. But Sandy was different. She tilted back her beautiful white face and gazed upward at him with blue-diamond eyes that had suddenly gone solemn and wistful like a child's. "Got to talk to you, Sandy! Got to!"

Sandy's bronze-and-green freckled eyes narrowed, but an understanding grin jerked upward a corner of his broad, thin-lipped mouth. "Jam?"

"Yes!" Tony confirmed.

"You're still a rotten driver," Sandy drawled cheerfully, as Tony started her car with a protesting squeal of the brakes.

"Just look who taught me," Tony retorted. "Good flying weather today," she commented, her eyes sweeping a sky that was no bluer or brighter than they. "I've invited myself to dinner at your house and Mom says to dinner any other way. Making lots of money, Sandy? Why did you stop being a mail plane pilot? That was such a romantic way to make a living."

"Guess I'm not romantic," Sandy grinned. "Own my own plane. Do as I please. Go on, Pest. Spill it."

She started to laugh, but her last word ended on a wail. "Got myself half-frozen last night. Sandy, and this morning I've got cold feet. I'm scared, Sandy, I'm scared."

"Yeah," Sandy drawled, and somehow there was incredibly and fond jeering and comfort—all in that one drawl. "Yeah?"

"Does seem absurd," Tony acknowledged gratefully. "Never was scared of anything before. And now I'm not scared of anything. Sandy, I'm scared of me myself. Oh, Sandy, I'm right in the middle of the biggest mess—"

"Yeah," Sandy encouraged. Tony felt his wordless affection wrap her around. She began to talk. "I was so easy to tell things to Sandy. I was so easy to tell things to Sandy."

NEXT: Tony confides a fear.

SHE ENJOYS COOKING FOR AMERICANS

AMERICAN tourists may be criticized severely by some people in foreign countries because they expect to find all the conveniences of home wherever they travel, but I can think of no people on earth I'd rather cater to than American tourists," said Adele Kline, partner and manager of the most successful tea room in Montreal, Canada.

Americans may be fussy, but they are the most appreciative folk on earth when pleased, is Miss Kline's opinion.

After all, the appreciation one gets in her work is the real source of enjoyment in the job," Miss Kline said.

Miss Kline nursed overseas during the war. There she found what work could mean in one's life of ease, so she went into the tea room business, first in New York, then in Quebec. She thinks she has found her real niche now.

"The best thing on earth is to happen to hit the favorite dish of one's patrons," she said. "The next best thing is to introduce some foreign dish that appeals. I have found such pleasure in this work, that I have often wondered why so many modern wives seem to hate planning and cooking. If you concentrate on it, there's real fun to be had in the doing."

YOUNGEST IN ANTHROPOLOGY STUDIES YOUTH

By NEA Service

ARENTS and teachers have ceased to take childhood and adolescence for granted in the past hundred years," said Margaret Mead, "and today they are attempting to fit education to the needs of the child rather than press the child into an inflexible educational mold."

Miss Mead is one of the youngest anthropologists connected with the American Museum of Natural History and she recently spent nine months in Samoa, studying the growing girl in a primitive community for her forthcoming book, "Coming of Age in Samoa."

"I found the so-called 'savages' untroubled by jealousy, parental devotion, possessive love or frustration. Coming of age was a natural, happy affair," she reported.

"In complicated civilizations, years of study are necessary before the student can begin to understand the forces at work within them.

"A study of the French family alone would involve a preliminary study of French history, French law and of the Catholic and Protestant attitudes toward sex and personal relations.

"A primitive people, without a written language, present a much less elaborate problem and a trained student can master the fundamental structure of a primitive society within a few months."

How To Play Bridge

By Milton C. Work

Today, tomorrow and Thursday a series of deals, one each day, will be given. The bidding and contract will be stated, and one or two questions concerning the play will be submitted. Each day's questions will be fully answered that same day, but readers are urged to write their own answers in the blank below before examining mine. The reader who accepts this suggestion will find that his interest in the series is greatly increased.

South becomes the Declarer; contract three Hearts.

THE QUESTIONS

1. What four cards should be played to trick 1?
2. What card should be led to trick 2?

ANSWER BLANK

1. To trick 1, West should lead North should play East should play South should play
2. The lead to trick 2 should be

THE ANSWERS

1. The four cards played to the first trick should be Clubs—King, Nine, Ace, Four. The King of Clubs is the most advantageous opening the West hand contains Olive branch the Ace of Clubs and take his partner's trick so as to obtain the lead. Should East play small, game could not be saved. West has doubled a Heart, showing strength in Spades, Diamonds and Clubs. Dummy's Diamond holding of A-Q-10-8 shows that South can obtain one or more diamonds on Dummy's Diamonds. As Dummy can ruff South's remaining Clubs, the only chance for the adversaries is in Spades and that suit can be bid much more advantageously by East than by West.

It was noted that had East played small instead of the Ace, game could not have been saved.

2. West should lead the Jack of Spades. Leading toward partner's strength through possible strength in Clubs is not a good idea. To Dummy's weakness the Jack is the most advantageous lead from J-N-X.

School Days Again

ARE YOU READY?

School begins Tues., Sept. 4. In this final busy week of preparation mothers will appreciate the readiness of this store with both high and low shoes for boys and girls from kindergarten age to high school years.

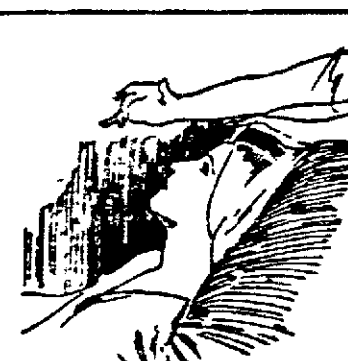

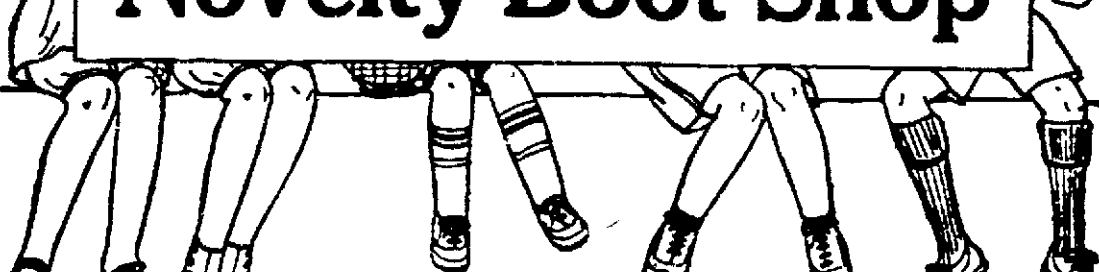

We encourage particular care in the selection and fitting of all children's shoes—and particularly so of the smaller folks. If any of them have gone bare-foot or worn very soft, easy shoes or sandals this Summer, be careful about crowding their feet back into last Spring's shoes—for growing feet develop rapidly you know—and part of that "spreading" is natural growth.

Shoes Fitted By X-Ray

Though furthest from their minds, correct shoes are absolutely essential for school children, if you wish them to study. Nervous and muscular disorders arising from wrong shoes interfere with a child's progress. Yet a child cannot tell you if a shoe is perfectly fitted. Your shoe man must know how to fit shoes. We do. We are careful. We have a large stock of all sizes for growing feet, and we use the X-Ray to insure a perfect fit.

The newly organized Calumet Golf club, located on the old William Hurley and Allen Mortimer farms north of this city, was unofficially opened Saturday when approximately 40 members turned out to play their first round on the course. A larger number, including many visitors, appeared Sunday.

The official opening will take place within a week or two, it is predicted by the officials. The fairways are reported in fine shape now, but the greens need a little more time to develop.

Construction of the links, a nine-hole course, was started last fall. Members were taken in from the county at large.

A number of members of the Chilton aerie, Fraternal Order Eagles, went to Hollywood park, Wolf lake, Sunday to attend the annual basket picnic given by the Fond du Lac aerie.

Members of the local Odd Fellows lodge and their families held their annual picnic at Pigeon Lake Sunday.

County Judge and Mrs. H. F. Arps were in New Holstein Sunday to attend the Waltonian picnic given under the auspices of the Isaac Walton league at the Civic park. Judge Heindel started on a trip to see the Marble Caves. While enroute they became confused in the web of roads in that section of the country and finally stopped in a small village. Nick was curious to know where they were and on questioning he found that he was in Cooperstown.

"Hurrah!" Nick shouted. I am not where I intended to be but this suits me fine. And without another word he dashed to the hotel and ordered a chicken dinner. Reports indicate that Nick broke all chicken eating records. "I didn't see Maribel caves," Nick said, "but I had my chicken dinner and I'm satisfied."

Mrs. Val Petrie will move this week into the Westphal home on Main-st. recently vacated by the family of John Kohn, which has taken up temporary quarters in the Mrs. Jennie Kartheiser home on S. Madison-st. Mr. and Mrs. John Fluhr will move into the house vacated by Mrs. Petrie, and the family of Louke Harlow will move into the Oesau flat formerly occupied by the Fluhrs.

Mrs. Herman Ortlepp is in a hospital at Rochester, Minn., where she is receiving medical treatment.

Mrs. Henry Rollmann, who fractured her hip some weeks ago, is improving rapidly. She is convalescing at her home on S. Madison-st.

Ten signs, reading, "Protect Children" have been erected along the principal streets of the city by the local post of the American Legion as a reminder to motorists. BARTHELMESS GIVEN NEW LEADING WOMAN

Richard Barthelmess fans will be introduced to a new leading lady in "Out of the Ruins," his latest First National starring feature which is attracting huge crowds to the Elite Theatre this week. The young lady is none other than Marian Nixon, a well-known actress who is playing her first feminine lead opposite the black-haired Barthelmess in this screen version of the Sir Philip Gibbs story.

"Out of the Ruins" was directed by John Francis Dillon who was also responsible for the excellent direction of "The Noose." This feature is being heralded as another Barthelmess triumph and presents the star in the uniform of the famous French Blue Devils.

WINNER PLAYERS

The John D. Winninger Players opened last night at the Fisher's Theatre to their usual capacity business, even forcing the box-office to sell standing room. "What Anne Brought Home," the Winninger's opening play certainly was all that the advance stories said it would be. Being a comedy of everyday life, well staged, with finished acting by everyone, it kept the audience busy applauding and laughing during the entire show. Mr. Winninger has one of the best companies he has ever had, this season.

"Hell's Bells" the offering for tonight is one of the latest sure-fire comedy hits of the season, having enjoyed an extended run in the bigger houses in New York and Chicago. In this play which is a story of American small town life, John D. Winninger, Minet Winninger and Adolph Winninger have the leading roles, as this production calls for character leads. All three of the Winningers are favorites of long standing with the theatre going public, and they will be seen at their best in "Hell's Bells." All other members of company will have fine parts as the cast is large.

BERG'S JUDGMENT IN DAMAGE SUIT ACCEPTED

Notice has been filed with Judge Theodore Berg of municipal court, that the plaintiff in a recent litigation here, Clarence Johnson versus E. A. Peters, St. Louis, has accepted its verdict of $2,000 damages handed down by the judge.

The case is the outgrowth of an automobile accident on Highway 11 north of Kaukauna about a year ago. Johnson, a minor, sued Peters and a jury returned a verdict of $3,000 in favor of the youth. The judge took the case under advisement and set the amount at $2,000 which has been accepted. Johnson suffered cuts about the mouth and loss of two teeth.

Chicago — (AP) — Vice President Charles G. Dawes Monday observed his sixty-third birthday anniversary by appearing for work as usual at his offices in the Central Trust Company bank. He rather expected a birthday cake for dinner, he said, but was not sure about that.

SEARCH FOR FOSSILS RESUMED IN MONTANA

Washington — (AP) — Dr. C. W. Gilmore of the Smithsonian Institution, curator of vertebrate paleontology in the National Museum, has gone back to the Blackfoot Indian reservation in Montana after 15 years to resume his search for dinosaur remains.

It was there in 1913, while associated with the United States geological survey, that he found the remains of a dinosaur, now to science, which was given the name of Brachiosaurus. Discovered in the upper Cretaceous geological formation, it is the smallest horned dinosaur yet found in this country.

Since making that find, Dr. Gilmore has always wanted to go back to the region which is practically an unworked field for the paleontologist. He is accompanied on this summer's expedition by George M. Sternberg, son of a noted fossil collector, who joined him in Kansas while he was enroute to Catback, Mont., by automobile.

Dr. Gilmore also plans to visit Bear Creek, Mont., where primitive mammal remains have been found.

C. F. Christensen returned Sunday to Chicago where he is employed as structural engineer, after spending a two week vacation at the home of his parents. Mrs. C. C. Christensen accompanied her son as far as Milwaukee, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Elwers and family are visiting relatives in Rhine-land. They will probably return accompanied her son as far as Milwaukee, Wednesday.

LEGION BEATS RAILROAD TEAM AND LEADS SOFTBALL RACE

Battle On Even Terms Until Ninth Inning When Vets Pull Ahead

Losers Will Play Cardinals Tuesday Evening at First Ward School

CITY TITLE SERIES

Legion (National)	2	1	567
Cardinals (Interplay)	1	1	568
C. N. W. Ry. (American)	1	2	333

WEEK'S GAMES

Tuesday—C. N. W. Ry. vs. Cardinals (First)
Wednesday—Legion vs. Cardinals (Jones)

(Final games)

The old boys still can play baseball and that probably accounts for the reason the American legion softball team defeated the Chicago and Northwestern railway outfit in the playoff for the city championship Monday evening at Wilson Junior high school grounds. The score was 6 and 5 in favor of the legion, the final and winning run being scored in the last inning when it looked as though the game might have to be played by moonlight.

The crowd which turned out to watch the fracas might have made Dutch Brautigan of the valley baseball club wish he'd gone into prompt softball, and could charge a couple nickels per admission. Several hundred folks surrounded the Fifth ward and other sections of the city saw the battle and got as much kick out of it as a big league baseball game.

Tuesday evening the Railroads will play the Cardinal team of the Interplay league. The game is to be played at the large levee where they were carrying around after Monday's fracas. When the final man had retired they started looking for every flaw in the officiating of the game and threatened to pull out of Tuesday's game. Tuesday's game will be played at the First ward grounds.

Lothar Gref did the tossing for the legion and allowed only five hits. He issued no passes and whiffed seven of the Railroaders, two in the third, seventh and eighth innings. "Fud-dah" Gresenz tolled for the legion and had the best catching in the battle. The legion clubbers won winning. Gresenz allowed three hits and issued passes besides getting four strikeouts. Chappell tolled during the first inning while Gresenz was finding his way to the park and allowed two hits which gave the legion the lead.

The game looked like a long drawn out affair with plenty of hitting when the initial inning was over. The Legionaires scored twice in their half the inning Starnard and Schabo counting on three successive hits. Eddie's blow being a healthy two bagger.

The Railroaders came back with a vengeance, however, and on an error, fielder's choice, and two hits counted three times to take the lead. The legion tied the count "in the second" however, Frank Wheeler, getting a walk, going around on an error, and a hit by Beyer, and scoring on an error on a play against Lothar Gref.

The legion again took the lead in the third inning when Schabo walked, stole second, advanced to third on Sylvester's sacrifice and counted on a walk by the Railroaders. The Railroaders again tied the count a moment later when Chappell singled, stole two bases and counted on a hit by Shorty Christen.

It was a peaceful gathering from then until the sixth inning when the legion went ahead with one run. After Beyer had tied off Smith singled and stole second and third, scoring when Gresenz tossed the ball out in the road on a wild pitch. The railroad team tied the count in the eighth on an error, stolen base and passed ball, and a hit by Chuck Johnston. Johnston was caught off second base. Gref to Beyer and the uprising ended.

Going into the first of the ninth a flash light was needed to find the ball because of darkness. Bates, first up for the legion sneaked a drive over third base and stole second and third to count when Gresenz again tossed the ball out in the road. Smith got as far as third base in the same inning but died there. A couple grounders and a pop fly was the best the Railroad team could do in their half the inning and it was all over—but the arguing.

GIBSON BACK IN GAME AS MANAGER OF HANSEN

New York—Bill Gibson, retired manager of the retired heavyweight champion, Gene Tunney, returned to the "fight racket" Monday, ending one of the shortest retirements on record.

In the future Gibson will manage Knute Hansen, Tex Rickard announced at Madison Square Garden. Rickard said that Gibson, who quit the fight game when Tunney announced his retirement, had $12,500 for Hansen's contract. The Danish heavyweight formerly was managed by Joseph Woodman and George Lawrence in behalf of a syndicate of wealthy sportsmen including Walter P. Chrysler, automobile manufacturer; William and Spruille Braden, magnates, and Warner Jones, banker.

MISSOURI TRAINER TO TAKE MADISON POST

Columbia, Mo.—William J. Fallon, trainer of the University of Missouri athletes, today confirmed reports from Madison, Wis., that he is to accept a similar position at the University of Wisconsin there. Fallon came to the University of Missouri three years ago from the University of Michigan.

San Francisco—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, knocked out Armand Emanuel, San Francisco, 6-2, Monday.

HIGH SCHOOL GRID SQUAD WILL BEGIN PRACTICE ON SEPT. 5

Schedule for Season Complete With Exception of Sept. 29 Date

Although Coach Joseph Shields of Appleton high school does not return to the city until Sunday or Monday and his plans for the fall grid season are an unknown quantity, indications are he does not intend to miss a day before getting down to work with his hopefuls. To date he has no game before Oct. 6, but as there is an open Saturday on Sept. 29, it is more than likely some school near here will be invited for the initial game.

The first day of school, Tuesday, Sept. 4, uniforms and equipment will be issued the high school squad and the men instructed to report for practice at the school field in the upper Third ward. Busses again will be used to transport the men to the grounds.

Extensive changes to the practice grounds are being completed this week, according to H. H. Heible, principal of the high school. An additional 80 feet has been added to the width of the grounds and the gridiron is being relayed to take it away from the former location. Barren places were planted with grass several weeks ago and it has been cut twice.

Considerable new equipment will be issued the men this fall, especially in the way of pads. The usual number of breast protectors, helmets and knee pads have been ordered and are ready for use. Sixty-five pair of shoes have been to the cobbler and now are ready for any kind of season.

How much quantity and quality football material will grieve Shields this afternoon is a problem. Several first class footballers were lost last spring through graduation and is not the easiest thing to replace them. Reports are that several husky chaps are coming into high school this fall from the junior institutions and after a year's training here will be ready to take the workings of the high school team.

Several of last year's men have been following the style set by their collegiate idols and taken to rough work during the summer. Construction work and pushing a shovel on the section or similar places seems to be the favorite occupation. The schedule for the fall which is complete except for the opening game, Sept. 29 will find Appleton in the first valley conference game at Fond du Lac. The week following the team will battle West Green Bay on Oct. 20 take a jaunt to Sheboygan.

Oshkosh high will come to Appleton on Oct. 27 and Manitowoc on Nov. 3. The annual county feud game will be fought at Kaukauna this year, Nov. 1, while the team will play East Green Bay at Green Bay on Nov. 17. Martinette at Appleton ends the season's activity, the game being played Nov. 24.

Coach Shields may have an opponent lined up for the Sept. 29 date when he arrives here. He has suggested a game with Ripon, Waupun or some other team in the southern circuit and one of these schools has the date open probably will take it.

SCHLAFERS WALLOP CLINTONVILLE, 26-5

Set Record by Scoring at Least One Run Every Inning

The Schlafer Hardware company nine traveled to Clintonville Sunday to battle with a truck city team and enjoyed a batting spree, base running exercise and general limbering up after several week's idleness.

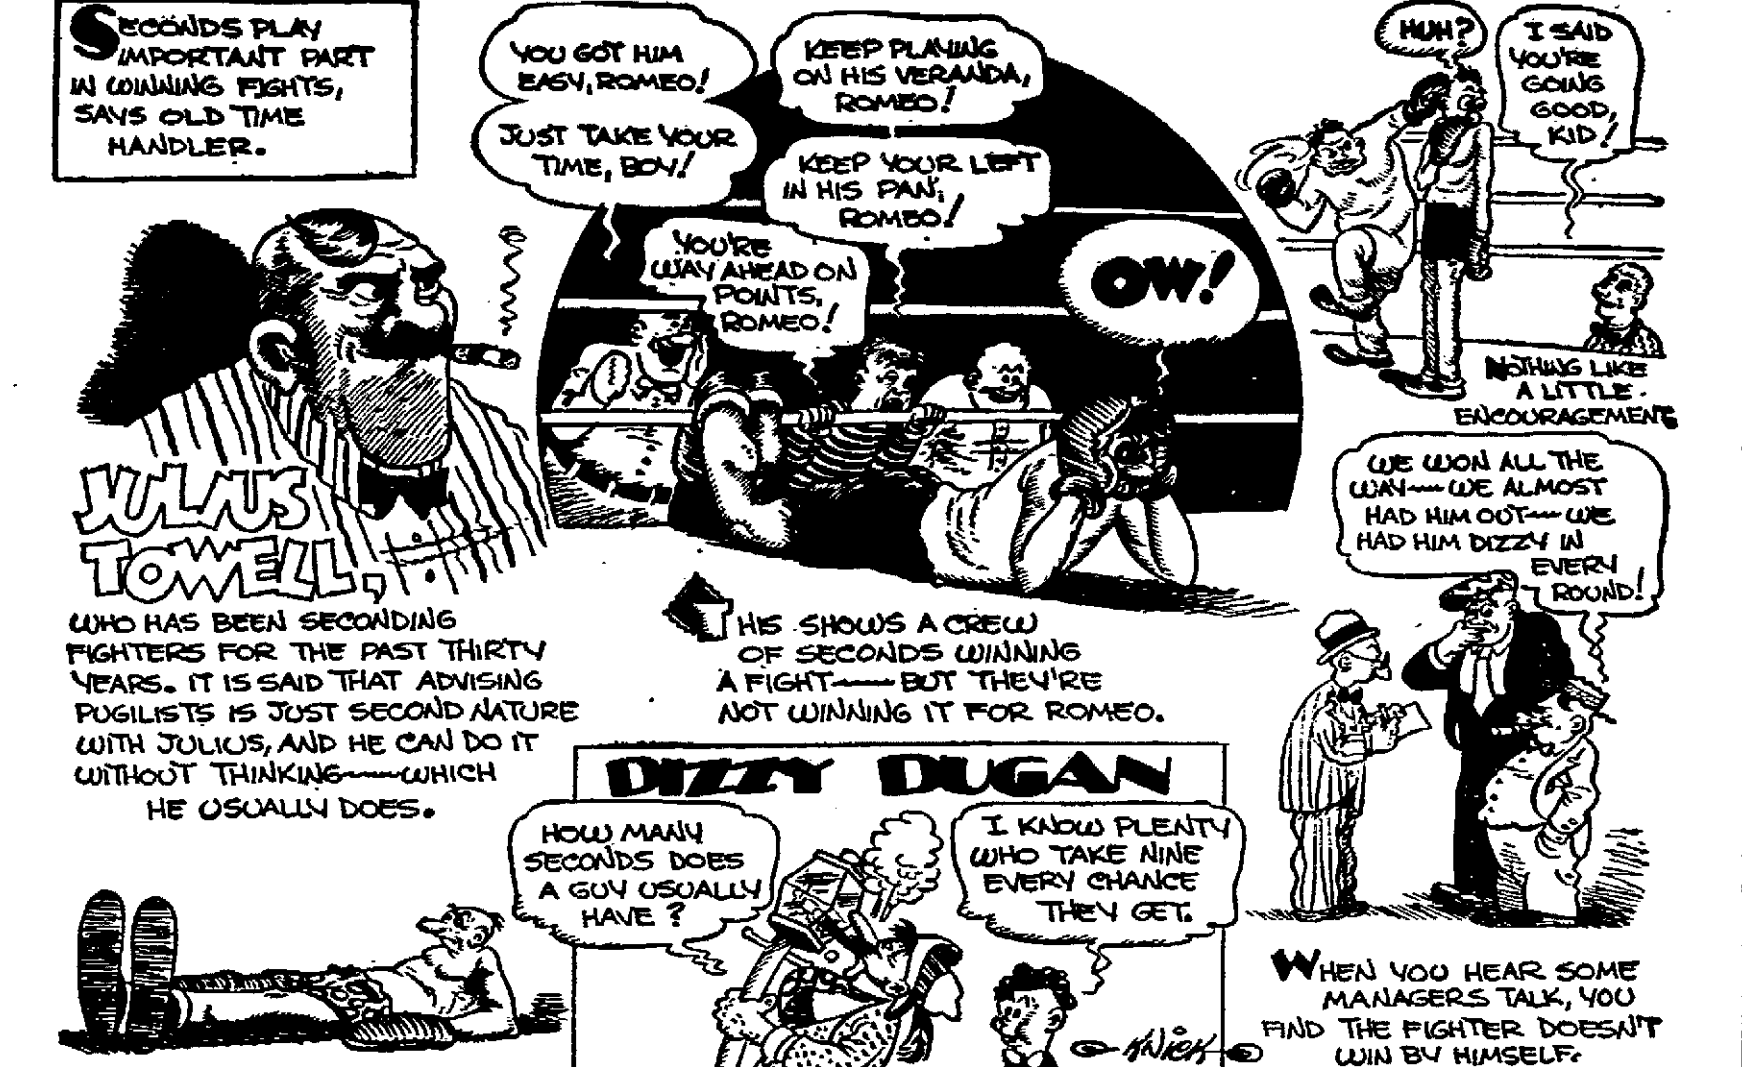

They pounded four Clintonville pitchers for 23 hits, worked them for ten passes which with five fielding errors and five more of judgment resulted in 25 runs. In the meantime M. King held the Boosters to two singles and one run in five innings, and E. Mar-tell star of the Legion junior nine, allowed three hits and four runs during the remainder of the fracas. The three hits were bunched and with an error resulted in the four runs. King had six strikeouts to his credit, Mortell four and the Clintonville pitchers, five.

REPAIR GYMNASIUM AND LOCKER ROOMS AT H. S.

Interscholastic athletics are not the only phase of high school athletic activities which are receiving attention at Appleton high school. During the summer months the boys locker rooms at the institution have been repainted and placed in condition for the onslaught of high school youngsters taking part in intramural and gymnasium activities.

New lines have been painted on the gym floor for games and other activities and new lights installed which change the place from a dingy hole to a well lighted room. Ropes and chains all have been tested during the last few weeks and now are ready for use in gym training.

$125,000 PUBLIC GOLF COURSE AT SHEBOYGAN

Appleton is not the only city in this section of Wisconsin to have a big public golf course in 1929. The Pigeon River site is to be the location of a course at Sheboygan. It will be an eighteen hole course.

The new course will be located north of the Howards road just west of the point where that highway is intersected by the Wilgus road, and it is about a mile from the city limits. When completed, and after the building of the proposed clubhouse, the entire property will represent an investment of approximately $125,000 and will be classed among the best golf courses in Wisconsin.

Louisville—Paul Allen, Chicago, won from Jimmy Hackley, Indianapolis, (10.)

HELEN WILLS AGAIN WINS TENNIS CROWN

Defeats Helen Jacobs by Crushing Attack; Contest Lasts 33 Minutes

Forest Hills, N. Y.—In thirty-three minutes, Helen Wills, the invincible won our women's national tennis championship for the fifth time Monday afternoon at Forest Hills stadium. With the most one-sided victory she ever has enjoyed in the United States final, Miss Wills turned back the challenge of Helen Jacobs at 6-2, 6-1.

This was completed an epic cycle of tennis triumphs which began in the national championship tourney a year ago. A series of straight set victories starting on the same court, exactly a year before, brought Helen Wills' championships of France, England and the United States and brandied her as the undisputed champion of the world.

From start to finish of the match, Miss Wills' mastery of her Californian rival was so complete that critical moments were rare. The climax of the match came early. In the fifth game the tide turned with such patent force that the 3,000 spectators realized at once the issue was ended. As determined in her opposition as the champion was in her attack, Helen Jacobs of Santa Barbara called upon all her energy at the outset. Like so many others in the last year, the 29-year-old challenger learned soon that there was super tennis in the racket of Helen, the invincible, when the occasion demanded.

When the contest began it looked as if Miss Wills was to score another sweeping triumph. But Helen Jacobs was not so easily discouraged. Momentarily the tide turned and the score was tied at 2 all, but the tide flowed back again with such fury that it engulfed Miss Jacobs.

WALKER KNOCKS OUT EMANUEL IN SEVENTH

Makes Bid for Crown by Beating Man Who Lost Close Decision to Loughran

San Francisco—(AP)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, made a successful entry into the light heavyweight ranks Monday night when he scored a sensational knockout over Armand Emanuel, San Francisco, in the seventh round of their ten round bout.

With the same spectacular attack that helped him win and hold the welterweight and middleweight titles in turn, Mickey Walker punched Emanuel out of the 175 pound class temporarily at least.

Two short right handers did the trick. The first time it landed, Emanuel reeled on the canvas for nine seconds. He got up groggy, and during a hard exchange in which he tried to regain ground, bumped into another right to the jaw that put him out for the full count. Handlers had to help him to his corner and he was dazed long after reaching his dressing room.

A few months ago Emanuel gave Tommy Loughran a great battle, losing a close decision. A crowd of approximately 20,000 persons paid around $50,000 to see the fight. Foggy and cool weather held down the attendance.

Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, announced that he was negotiating for a title match with Loughran. He said it would be held either in Chicago or Los Angeles.

"Chesterfield - now you're talking!"

MILD enough for anybody... and yet THEY SATISFY*

WHEN we purchase over 100 million pounds of choice tobacco from one crop, it means that regardless of cost, we are going to be sure of the quality of the tobacco in Chesterfield cigarettes. In this way we insure Chesterfield's good taste. Millions of dollar's worth of fine tobaccos—ageing, maturing and sweetening in storage—there is no better safeguard than this.

This one, you'll agree, is the greatest we have ever made—the most remarkable, we are told, in merchandising history. Go today to the drug store. Buy a tube of Palmolive Shaving Cream at the regular price of 35c. The razor described above will be given you with it FREE with blade—all for 35c. But remember: Dealers' stocks are strictly limited. When your store is out, it can get no more. Thus early acceptance of this offer is necessary. Corrects the mistakes of old-time shaving preparations. Palmolive Shaving Cream is a scientific creation. Men by the millions are flocking to its use. We started by asking 1000 men what they most desired in a shaving soap. Then met their exactments one by one. It is different in formula, action and effect from any other shaving preparation known. It corrects the 5 mistakes of old-time shaving preparations. 1. It multiplies itself in lather 250 times. 2. It softens the beard in one minute. 3. The lather maintains its creamy fullness for ten minutes on the face. 4. The extra strong bubbles support the hairs for cutting, where weak bubbles let them fall down. 5. The blend of palm and olive oils brings fine after-effects. Accept today Now to win you over to a trial, we make an offer which we believe is the most remarkable any manufacturer ever made to gain a fair trial for his product. In your interest and in ours, please accept it today. Go now to the drug store. You'll thank us for the gift today—and for many days—for the new shaving comfort our cream offers you. The identical GOLD Gillette with ONE blade for which thousands of men formerly paid $6, with a case and 12 blades. Palmolive Shaving Cream. All for 35c.

RASPUTIN'S SPIRIT RISES ONCE MORE IN $1,000,000 LAWSUIT

Daughter Asks Judgment
from Men Who Admitted
Killing Her Father

Paris (AP)—Nearly 12 years after his death, the spirit of Rasputin, the "Black Monk" who dominated the Russian court before the czar's fall, is coming to life in the form of a $1,000,000 lawsuit in the French courts.

Mrs. Boris Solovieff, Rasputin's daughter, is asking judgment for that amount from Prince Youssouppoff and Grand Duke Pavlovich for the admission of Rasputin's killing in a book by the prince and for "insults to her father's memory which have so reduced his heirs that they no longer care to use his name."

The widow of a Russian officer and the mother of two children, Madame Solovieff, better known as Madame Rasputin, is now dancing on the music hall stage in Bucharest. She was a governess in a modest French home in Paris until she filed suit against her father's slayers and her employers learned her identity.

Maurice Garcon, one of France's most eminent criminal lawyers, says Madame Solovieff is prepared to prove her parentage beyond doubt. She is the oldest of three children, she says, and passed her childhood in the town of Pokrovskoe on the Turva river, the Siberian village from which Rasputin set out on foot, a wandering holy man, to make his fame in St. Petersburg as the healer of Prince Alexis, the czar's son and heir. It was by making the czar and Czarina believe that he held the life of the prince in his hands that Rasputin was believed to have gained his firm hold upon the Russian royal family.

All the principals in the Rasputin case are exiles. Prince Youssouppoff and his wife, the Princess Irene Alexandrovna, a niece of Nicholas II, run a small but well known dressmaking establishment in Paris and operate a school of applied arts for Russian refugees. Grand Duke Dmitri Pavlovich, the nephew of Grand Duke Cyril, acknowledged head of the house of Romanoff today, married Miss Audrey Emery, wealthy American girl, in 1926.

In his book, "Rasputin", Prince Felix admits he killed the monk, borrowing a revolver from the Grand Duke. He says he and the Grand Duke then wrapped the body in sackings and threw the body into the Neva river. When it was recovered two days later the Empress Alexandra ordered it placed in a richly decorated coffin and buried with the honors of a high ecclesiastic, although, according to the prince's account, "thanksgiving services were held in churches throughout the town. . . . Our health was drunk in private houses, at officers' messes, and in the restaurants."

Soon after began the break-up of Czarist Russia, and all the principals in the case fled from the Bolshevik regime.

BEGINNING THIS WEEK-END

Pettibone's will be closed on Friday night and open on Saturday until nine o'clock in the evening.

While the Friday opening was a success as far as this Store was concerned, Pettibone's agrees with the merchants who tried it that a divided policy results in confusion to the public and tends to lessen the spirit of harmony and good will which should prevail. Since it is not possible to secure the cooperation of all representative Appleton merchants for the Friday evening plan, Pettibone's joins with others in returning to the former schedule.
